

Event Itinerary

- Event Name: Bali Pass Trek 7D/6N
- Location: Bali Pass Trek
- Duration: 7 Days 6 Night

Day 0: Welcome to Sankri | Arrival & Mountain Evening

- Reach Sankri by around 3:00 PM and settle into this scenic Himalayan village.
- Sankri serves as the starting point for the Bali Pass adventure and is surrounded by beautiful mountain landscapes.
- The village lies approximately 195 km from Dehradun.
- Travel from Dehradun usually takes around 6–8 hours depending on the mode of transport.
- Check into the guest house or homestay and take time to relax.
- Enjoy dinner and prepare for the trekking days ahead.

Day 2: Entering the Wilderness | Sankri to Seema

- Start the morning with a road journey from Sankri to Taluka.
- After reaching Taluka, have breakfast before beginning the trek towards Seema.
- Cover nearly 12 km through thick Himalayan forests filled with chestnut, walnut, willow, chinara and conifer trees.
- The trail features several beautiful waterfalls along the route.

- Depending on the route, you may pass through Dhaatmeer village or follow the Karmanasha stream before both trails meet near Gangaar.
- Reach the Seema campsite by late afternoon and settle into your tent for the night.

Day 3: Along the Supin | Seema to Rainbasera

- Leave Seema campsite and follow the trail towards Rainbasera at around 3,086 metres.
- Trek approximately 9 km, following the Supin River through the mountain landscape.
- Pass through Debshu Bugyal, where impressive views of Kala Nag can be seen.
- Descend across loose and sandy sections before reaching the Supin River.
- Cross the river using the bridge and continue the ascent with the water flowing beside the trail.
- Negotiate slippery and uneven sections carefully before arriving at Rainbasera.
- Spend the night at the riverside campsite.

Day 4: The Lake in the Mountains | Rainbasera to Ruinsara Tal

- Begin the day's trek from Rainbasera towards the spectacular Ruinsara Tal.
- Cover around 7.5 km while gradually gaining altitude to approximately 3,565 metres.
- Follow the Supin River through a scenic Himalayan landscape.
- Reach Ruinsara Tal by afternoon and admire the lake surrounded by meadows and rhododendron vegetation.
- The trail is manageable but can feel tiring due to the altitude and terrain.

- Stay at the campsite in wooden huts and enjoy the peaceful surroundings.
- Take in the views of the lake, river and surrounding Himalayan peaks.

Day 5: Into the High Mountains | Ruinsara Tal to Odari

- Depart from Ruinsara Tal and descend towards the Supin River through dense vegetation.
- Cross the river by bridge before beginning the climb towards higher terrain.
- Continue southeast through a small meadow while following the river.
- After approximately 3 km, the trail gradually turns towards the southwest.
- Trek another kilometre to reach the Odari campsite at around 4,008 metres.
- Odari is a natural rock cave traditionally associated with Bali, the brother of Hanuman.
- Enjoy striking views of Swargarohini peaks from the campsite.
- Use the afternoon for learning important techniques required for the challenging sections ahead.

Day 6: High-Altitude Preparation | Odari to Base Camp

- Begin the short but demanding ascent from Odari towards Bali Pass Base Camp.
- Cover around 3.25 km while climbing to approximately 4,678 metres.
- The route follows a steep mountain ridge with loose stones and a sharp incline.
- Take extra care while negotiating the rugged terrain.

- As the altitude increases, temperatures can fall below freezing at night.
- Stay hydrated and remain active while allowing sufficient time for acclimatization.
- Reach Base Camp and settle in for the night.

Day 7: Crossing Bali Pass | Base Camp to Lower Dhamni

- Start early around 6:00 AM and prepare for the most demanding section of the trek.
- From Base Camp, ascend towards Bali Pass at approximately 4,950 metres.
- Snow-covered sections lead towards the pass, requiring careful movement and use of previously learned techniques.
- Reach Bali Pass after around 2–3 hours of ascent.
- At the top, enjoy expansive views of Swargarohini, Bandarpoonch, the Garhwal ranges and the Yamunotri Valley.
- Begin the steep descent over scree, loose rocks and narrow mountain sections.
- Take a short break at Upper Dhamni before continuing towards Lower Dhamni.
- Stay close to the trek leader as some portions of the descent can be difficult to navigate.

Day 8: Yamunotri & Journey Back | Lower Dhamni to Dehradun

- Begin the final trekking section early from Lower Dhamni.
- Follow the initial forest trail before joining the cemented path towards Yamunotri.
- Cover approximately 4.5 km and reach Yamunotri in around 1.5 hours.
- Spend some time exploring the sacred destination and experience the natural hot-water springs.

- Continue towards Jaan Ki Chatti along the regular pilgrim route.
- Cover approximately 5 km from Yamunotri to Jaan Ki Chatti.
- From Jaan Ki Chatti, board the vehicle for the return journey to Dehradun.
- Conclude the Bali Pass adventure with memories of the Himalayan crossing.
